The temperature balance between the human body and the surrounding environment, along with moisture management within the "sleeping den" are the key to a perfect night's sleep. During a sleeping period, the bedding upper layers and the mattress ticking, should transport a quarter of a litre of perspiration away from the sleeper. Simultaneously it should maintain a stable level of warmth, even when ambient temperature fluctuates. The new Thermotech Aqua® provides fabrics the ability to absorb moisture and at the same time, allows a rapid evaporation/drying of the fabric moisture, giving the perfect balance to an ideal rest.
